

The Koala

Read the story.

The koala is a marsupial, a pouched mammal.

It lives in Eucalyptus forests on the east-coast of Australia.

It eats special kinds of Eucalyptus leaves.

They can live up to 13 years in the wild.

Koalas spend most of their life in the trees.

They sleep up to 18 hours a day.

The koala is protected.

'Koala' is an Aboriginal word.

It means 'no water' because koalas get their fluid from eating leaves.

Underline the words that should begin with a capital letter.

the koala is a marsupial, a pouched mammal.

it lives in eucalyptus forests on the east-coast of australia.

it eats special kinds of eucalyptus leaves.

they can live up to 13 years in the wild.

koalas spend most of their life in the trees.

they sleep up to 18 hours a day.

the koala is protected.

'koala' is an aboriginal word.

it means 'no water' because koalas get their fluid from eating leaves.